HURRICANE AGAIN LASHES ALONG THE COAST OF FLORIDA

Communication Cut Off In the Wind-Swept Area

WIND REACHES 80-MILE SPEED

Miami Again In The Path Of The West Indian Twister

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Lashed by the second hurricane that has whipped out of the west Indies within two months, portions of the lower east coast of Florida were isolated from communication from the outside world today.

Telephone companies reported their lines down in the vicinity of West Palm Beach and Miami where a severe gale was blowing. All messages were subject to delay.

The wire chief office of the Western Union reported that they lost the last wire into Miami, a capable via Key West, early today when power failed in the wind-swept city. Last reports were that the gale attained a velocity of 80 miles an hour and that portions of Miami beach were flooded.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., reported that its lines of communication were open only as far down as Titusville, along the east coast. The long distance chief operator said last reports from Miami were that Hialeah was flooded.

ATLANTA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Reports to telegraph companies in Atlanta today said that the Florida storm was in a triangular area, rustling between Fort Pierce, Oketree and Key Largo and winds in some parts were blowing between 80 and 100 miles an hour.

All wires to Miami and vicinity were down. One unconfirmed report through Key West said that water was flowing over the causeway between Miami and Miami Beach. Roofs had been blown off of smaller structures in Miami Beach and that flooding of manholes had put the lines out of commission.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The tropical storm that passed near Nassau last night was reported by the weather bureau today to be approaching the extreme south.

M'WILLIAMS CASE IS DISMISSED HERE

Defendant Had Been Out On Bond Since First Hearing

Andrew McWilliams, negro, who was charged with an attack on a white woman, is a free man again. The case against him was dismissed, it was stated in court circles today.

McWilliams, who claims to be well up in years, was tried in the circuit court here sometime ago, a mistrial resulting. The jury was reported to be eleven to one for acquittal. Since a short time after his hearing, McWilliams has been out on bond.

The McWilliams case attracted much attention at the time. He was arrested at his home not far from Austinville and for a time was held in the Huntsville jail for safekeeping.

He was defended by Wert and Hutson, well known local law firm.

LIDE'S ANNISTON STATION IS TO BE FEATURED IN POST AD

Anniston, Ala., and Frank P. Lide, prominent Albany-Decatur man, will break into the advertising pages of the Saturday Evening Post in the latter part of November, when the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company publishes a full page advertisement, showing a view of the Anniston station of the Frank P. Lide's One-Four-O Tire company. The Anniston station is operated under the personal management of C. K. Lide Jr., brother of Frank P. Lide, and also a former local resident.

The picture of the station to be shown in The Post was made from an oil painting, the original of which has been promised by the Goodyear company to Mr. Lide. The advertisement of the Goodyear company will go into the homes of the more than 2,000,000 subscribers of the Saturday Evening Post. Statisticians have figured that 18 tons of paper are required to print a single page Goodyear advertisement in The Post. The publication will require 400 pounds of ink.

Car Being Held By Local Officers

The automobile taken when a man who gave the name of Dick McCluskey, was arrested by Sheriff Poole and deputies near Hartselle, is being held pending further investigation. McCluskey is said to be wanted in this county on a charge of burglary and in a number of other states, on various charges. He is held in jail here, pending a decision as to his future.

May Resurface Part of 3rd Ave.

Part of Third avenue, west, south of Second street, may be resurfaced it was indicated by a discussion of the matter by the Albany city council at its regular meeting Friday evening.

In connection with the Goodyear company's national advertising campaign, the statistically inclined have figured that since Goodyear has been advertising in The Post for 25 years, that if all the Goodyear advertising in that magazine was assembled in a single book, it would make up a great volume of 900 pages.

The Anniston plant of the One-Four-O company was opened several months ago, and already has demonstrated its ability to hold a place among the leading Goodyear establishments in the South. For several years, the local plant of Frank P. Lide, has been recognized in the Goodyear organization as one of its "star" points and it frequently has set the pace in various selling plans inaugurated by the company.

The fact that the Anniston plant was selected by the Goodyear company as a "representative Goodyear Service Station" was very gratifying not only to friends of the new station in Anniston, but to the friends of Mr. Lide and his brother in Albany-Decatur.

Council To Meet On Next Tuesday

The Albany city council will meet on Tuesday night, September 21, in an adjourned session from last night, to canvass the vote returns from the four Albany wards. The last regular meeting of the council will be held on Friday night, October 1. The council will meet again on Tuesday, October 3 to install the members elected by the people.

Sewer Additions Still Discussed

The Albany city council, meeting in regular session Friday evening, devoted some time to the discussion of the proposal for construction of additional sewer facilities in East Albany.

ARGUMENT IN SUIT OVER FIGHT FUNDS IS MADE SATURDAY

Dempsey and Tunney Cited To Appear On Tuesday

TAX PAYER'S SUIT IS FILED

It Is Admitted Kearns Has Interest In Litigation

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Argument in the suit to prevent Tex Rickard from paying Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney any money before their heavyweight fight was heard today and the case adjourned until Tuesday. Dempsey and Tunney were cited to appear in court at that time but it is understood their attorneys may appear for them.

The action came up through a "tax payer's suit" who averred that Rickard intended to pay some of the receipts of the fight to Dempsey and Tunney in violation of the state boxing law, which provides no contestant shall be paid for a contest.

The suit was brought by an employee in the office of John R. K. Scott, who described himself as a "tax payer and ticket holder." It was admitted by Mr. Scott that Jack Kearns, Dempsey's former manager, had a major interest in the suit.

Kearns has a suit pending in New York against Dempsey, under which he is attempting to recover $333,000 from the world's champion. The suit was filed on Thursday and when it came up today Ira J. Williams, counsel for Rickard, moved that it be dismissed on the grounds of insufficiency of averment and because the bill was defective in that it did not name Dempsey and Tunney.

The court sustained the contention that the bill was defective and allowed the complainant to amend it by inserting the names of the two fighters.

Argument then proceeded on the main question insufficiency of averment and at conclusion the case went over to Tuesday.

Press to Broadcast PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—The newspapers of the country will not be shut out from broadcasting the details of the Dempsey-Tunney fight they receive over their wires from the ringside. This statement was made today by E. L. Austin, director general of the Sesqui-Centennial exposition. It had been given out by Tex Rickard, promoter of the bout in the Sesqui-Centennial next Thursday night that the broadcasting rights would be leased and if newspapers broadcast the fight from their own sources, it would constitute an infringement.

RING OF HAMMER IS HEARD AT PARK AS FAIR MAKES READY

Exhibits Entries To Close On Monday at Noon Hour

FARM FOLKS ARE URGED TO COME

Success Of Fair Is Seen Today By Hugh Ballew

The ring of the hammer at Malone Park today indicated that the exposition grounds for the North Alabama Fair will be in readiness Monday, the opening day of Fair week.

Hugh Ballew, who has accepted the responsibility for the success of the first exposition of its kind ever held in Albany-Decatur, announced today that the gates would open Monday at the noon hour as planned and close Saturday night.

Entries in the various agricultural exhibits will be received up until Monday at noon, declared Mr. Ballew. He declared that the agriculturists, poultry interests, stock raisers and householders who pride themselves upon the quality of canned goods, in the counties of Morgan, Lawrence and Limestone are evincing a great deal of interest and that the exhibit booths will be crowded. Exhibits from Lawrence county already have arrived.

Local merchants will have much of the goods manufactured and sold locally displayed at various booths. Visitors will not be allowed on the grounds Sunday, unless bringing exhibits. Tickets will be issued free to all making two or more entries.

One of the entertaining features of the fair is the pyrotechnic displays planned for each night, in which the history of America will be retold. The display begins with the earliest days of America Monday night and continues through Saturday night to the current history of the latter day America.

"Indications," stated Mr. Ballew, "point to a successful week. The fair catalogue has reached the farmers by this time and additional copies are being mailed out to various points. It is to the farmer more than any other class that we are appealing for the success of this fair, for the fair is purely agricultural from an educational standpoint."

A SYMPATHETIC editorial writer bewails the fact that Jack Dempsey, whether he beats Tunney or not, will get 14,000 times what Milton got for writing "Paradise Lost."

On the other hand, Milton probably would rather write "Paradise Lost" than beat Tunney for $1,000,000. Abraham Lincoln would rather have writ-

Tracing of Poison Purchase Leads To Arrest of Birmingham Man On Charge of Murdering His Sister

BIRMINGHAM, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Charged with the murder of his sister, Mrs. Edna Lowe, 31, beauty shop proprietress, who died from a strychnine poisoning last Sunday night, Charles M. Owen, 28, machinist, of 832 South 22nd street was being held without bond in the city jail today.

Owen was arrested late yesterday by Chief of Police Fred H. McDuff, with city detectives, upon his arrival at home. This arrest of Owen comes as a climax to a week of apparent non-action by police and other "investigating agencies and throws new light on the Lowe poisoning case.

That Mrs. Lowe was the victim of poison intended to kill her husband is the theory now being advanced, authorities declare.

It is known that for sometime Lowe and the family of his wife were at odds and at times feeling was intense between Lowe and his brother-in-law Charles Owen. The arrest of Owen followed an investigation into the poison sales records of all Southside drug stores by the police chief.

McDuff discovered a quantity of strychnine had been purchased by a person who gave his name as C. M. Owen on the afternoon of September 8. After being taken into custody Owen is said to have admitted buying the poison but declared it was the intention of killing a cat.

"We have been troubled with stray cats around our place," Owen is alleged to have told detectives, "and I intended to get rid of them." He steadfastly denied putting the poison in the liquor, which authorities say was the medium of death and disclaimed all knowledge of how the fatally ingredient came into the house.

SLEMP IS BUSY ON SHOALS WORK

New York Business Interests Busy On Properties

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—C. Bascom Slemple, former secretary to president Coolidge, has been retained by a group of New York business men who are contemplating making a bid for the government properties at Muscle Shoals it was reported here today.

While Mr. Slemple promptly denied that he had been retained by the group he said that he had heard that such a move was on foot, but understood that as yet the plans were in a somewhat turbulent start.

Senator Deneen, of Illinois, who headed the congressional commission which looked into bids for the properties at the last Congress and recommended acceptance of the one by the Alabama Power company said at his home in Chicago today that no new offer for the properties had been submitted to this commission. Action on the commission's recommendation was deferred by both house and senate until the coming session.

CANDIDATES MAKE FINAL APPEALS TO PUBLIC FOR VOTES

Big Total Is Expected To Be Cast In the Twin Cities

RESULT TO BE KNOWN EARLY

Four Entrants In The Two Races For Mayor

Candidates for mayor and aldermanic positions today were busy winding up their campaigns and the voters of Albany and Decatur will go to the polls Monday to cast their ballots by which they will select their municipal governing boards for the ensuing two years. A large total vote is expected. The campaigns in both cities have been hard fought, but have been without some of the spectacular features of past political battles.

In Albany the voters will choose as their mayor either Dr. F. L. Carswell, incumbent, or B. L. Malone. In Decatur there are only two candidates for mayor also, James A. Nelson, incumbent, seeking re-election. He is opposed by John A. Thomason.

The Albany campaign has been marked by a number of addresses by the two mayoralty candidates, each having spoken in different wards of the city. B. L. Malone will bring his campaign to a close Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, when he will speak in the banquet room of the Masonic building on Johnston street.

In Decatur the campaign has been marked by personal solicitations, the friends of both candidates having been busy for several weeks urging the claims of their favorites.

The Decatur voters will select their board of aldermen from a field of ten candidates, four of whom are seeking re-election as follows: Clyde Hendrix, W. E. Roper, S. H. Malone and W. F. Boswell. The other six candidates are: W. M. Royer, Herman Whaley, B. D. Meadors, William Mosely, Sr., D. D. Burleson and Lawrence Lee.

In addition to the mayoralty race, the contest between H. M. Priest and M. R. Rankin for president of the council has been an interesting one.

Albany voters will select their aldermen from a big field of candidates. Voters in all wards vote on the aldermen from each ward, two to be elected from each ward. The candidates include: first ward—J. A. Forman, A. B. Harvey, V. L. King, J. B. McBride, G. F. Solomon; second ward—J. D. Cloud, A. C. Dillehay, W. L. Hatchett, W. W. Johnson; third ward—C. L. Buck, S. E. Dutton, W. S. Reeves, A. C. Teague, W. H. Winton; fourth ward—R. C. Billings, F. A. Bloodworth, Lamar Penney.

The polls in both cities will open at eight o'clock or as soon thereafter as the election boards can be organized and begin functioning. The polls in Albany will close at six o'clock and in Decatur at five o'clock. The counting of the ballots, which will start as soon as the polls are closed, probably will be finished in Decatur by 8:30 o'clock and in Albany before ten o'clock.

STENOGRAPHER IS KILLED BY A CAR

Death Is Instant To Miss Gartland When Street Car Strikes

BIRMINGHAM, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Hurled under the wheels as she attempted to cross the track in front of an inbound Gate City street car, the body of Miss Helen Gartland, 17 years old stenographer, this morning was pulled from the track of the car. She was killed instantly.

Miss Gartland had darted in front of the car in an effort to stop it according to witnesses. Moving down hill and with a trailer behind it the car moved 40 feet down the track dragging the body with it before Motorman D. H. Robinson could stop it, it was stated.

Miss Gartland was employed as stenographer at the Drennan Motor Co., and was hurrying to work at the time of the accident. She made her home with her widowed mother, Mrs. Rosa Gartland, 7333 Georgia Road.

The street car was in charge of Conductor J. E. Hughes. Deputy Coroner J. R. Carroll was notified of the accident.

Here is something of vital importance to your family; the proper keeping of foods and milk.

Cooler weather does not signify that you can abandon your refrigerator. Ice service is just as important now as in mid-summer. Yet costs less, as the ice does not melt so fast.

Ice, costing a few cents a day, saves many dollars worth of food. Also prevents costly doctor bills. Play safe—the sure, truly economical way—with your refrigerator kept well iced.

PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON

Chief Executive And
Mrs. Coolidge Are
Enroute Home

GABRIELS, N. Y., Sept. 18.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge left here by special train at 7:40 a. m., eastern standard time today, on their return to Washington from their vacation.

Motoring six miles from White Pine camp which was, for over ten weeks, the summer white house, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge found natives and summer residents who have remained late in the season, out in force to bid them farewell at the train. The ride will take them out of the mountains and down the Mohawk and Hudson river alleys, over the New York Central railroad, to the vicinity of New York city and thence through Philadelphia to Washington.

The weather was clear and cool for the ride through the mountains.

IMPEACHMENT FILED
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 18.—(AP)—An affidavit filed with the Alabama supreme court Wednesday charges L. H. Reynolds, probate judge of Chilton county, with on one occasion destroying an absentee ballot.

The charges are made by Miss Elinor Robinson, a former clerk in the office of Judge Reynolds. The affidavits are filed with charges asking that the supreme court institute impeachments proceedings against Judge Reynolds.

RATES REVISION
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A revision of rates on cotton ties and buckles, iron or steel, was ordered recently by the Alabama public service commission. The commission found existing rates on these articles to be unjust and unreasonable, and adopted the mileage scale of rates proposed by standard line carriers, for carload shipments.

Huntsville Fair Dates, September 21-25

The Big Fair at Huntsville this year will be bigger and better than ever. Every day a feature day. Morgan county friends especially invited.

To the Voters of Albany:

I am asking the voters of our city to re-elect me the office of Mayor of Albany, and in doing so I am well aware that I am asking an endorsement of my administration of the city's affairs in so far as I have had to do with that administration, and for the part played by me in the management of the city's business during the two years now ending.

Basing my candidacy on a declaration in favor of a clean, vigorous and impartial enforcement of all the laws on the statute books of the city, I was elected, and construed my election to mean that the people approved my pre-election declarations, and wanted the law enforced, and to the best of my ability I have done what I said I would do. It has not always been pleasant; it may in some instances have worked rather harshly with some, but I did not make these laws. I found them on the statute books of the city. The people had said they wanted them enforced, I had promised to do it, and my oath of office required me to do it. Therefore, to the best of my ability I did it, fairly and impartially, without fear or favor, and measuring an equal and exact justice to all.

I am told that I have driven business from the city, because its laws were enforced. If you prefer a lax city administration, a winking at law, violation and an easy-go-lucky manner of handling the violators of statutes intended to protect your homes, and families, and make this city a safe place to live in, then you should change the laws, because a law un-enforced is an invitation to violate all law, and the enforcement of only those laws that are popular, or their enforcement against only persons who are undesirable is the rankest sort of favoritism, and means not only disrespect, but a contempt for all law.

I have no apology to make for doing what I conceive to have been my duty toward the enforcement of the law, and if re-elected I shall endeavor to enforce your regularly enacted statutes so long as they remain the mandate of this city to its Mayor.

It has been said that the city is in debt, and that I can't get it out. It remains only for me to say that I did not run the city in debt. I am in no way responsible for the debts I found owing the city when I was elected. I can and do say that the city has met its obligations, has paid its running expenses, and has maintained its credit during my term of office, and if you will exercise due care in selecting your Aldermen, who are the men who will at last have to pass such enactments as will gradually bring us back to a sure and safe financial basis.

I have as far as the city has been financially able to do so, encouraged the betterment of our public schools, and the conservation, and preservation of the public health.

It is always necessary to have funds to make developments, and the only way to get these funds is by taxing either directly, or indirectly, the citizens who make up our population, and my advice that until we can get the present city debt in better shape than it now is, we should go slowly, and act cautiously in increasing that debt. I will appreciate your careful consideration of my candidacy and solicit your vote on September 20th, 1926.

Very respectfully,
F. L. CARSWELL

TODAY 12 Years Ago

From The Daily of
September 18, 1914.

Various speakers are discussing the proposal to change the name of New Decatur to Morgan City.

Engine No. 1387, recently built by the Louisville and Nashville, passed through here today on its first trip. It is one of the largest on the road.

The Woman's Mission Society of Central Baptist church will buy at 10 cents a pound all cotton donated by county Baptists to meet their last year's mission pledges.

F. A. Bloodworth, of the Morgan County National Bank, left this morning to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Alabama Bankers Association.

B. L. Malone and F. F. Tidwell attended the Hartsville fact yesterday.

HERE IS A CREED WHICH IT WOULD BE WELL FOR EVERY FARMER TO KNOW.

The Daily, on many occasions in the past, has urged its rural readers to lend their co-operation to the farm bureau. This newspaper has taken this position, not because of any desire to dictate to the farmer a course of action, but because The Daily sincerely believes that only through co-operation, one with another, can the farmers, as a producing class, reach that condition of affluence and prosperity which should be their own.

In a recent issue of the Alabama bureau's official periodical, there appeared a creed, taken from the Kern county (Calif.) farm bureau, and the Daily republishes it below with the hope that some of its rural readers will familiarize themselves with its tenets, and become associated with the Alabama organization, which is doing so much to make their lot more endurable.

The creed is as follows:

I sincerely believe that it is my interest, as well as that of my fellow man, to participate in the activities of the farm bureau.

I believe that if my business is to develop and prosper, the community must develop and prosper along constructive civic and educational lines.

I believe the best way to make this community develop in the right manner is by all citizens uniting for constructive progress.

I believe that the farm bureau is a centralized institution through which the business of agriculture may be correlated to make the community better, thus improving my business and social conditions.

I believe that every member of various agriculture pursuits should do his full share in community activities as a rental which we pay for the privilege of living in the community.

I believe I should apply my energy and effort with that of my fellowman if I am to receive the benefits of co-operative effort.

I believe that my community is the most important place in the world to me because it is my home, and I owe the best that I have to my home and the organization that represents my home.

I believe membership in the farm bureau the centralized organization of agriculture, is not an expense but an investment which pays me cash dividends.

I believe that no rural community can properly develop without a modern farm bureau and its affiliated county agent, and therefore it is my duty as a good citizen to support it morally and financially.

I believe I will get out of this institution just exactly what I put into it. Therefore I pledge my energy and support to make it a success.

I believe in association with my fellow farmer and I therefore want my name enrolled with those who are the actual leaders and builders of this community.

I believe the farm bureau the only "organization with a college education," and, being recognized and fostered by the government, it is necessary for me to express my appreciation by whole-hearted support.

I believe in the farm bureau because I am a believer in men and the farm bureau is a congregation of men banded together to make the community a better place to live and bring up their children.

EDITOR WALKER SAYS LIMESTONE AND MADISON COUNTIES "GOT IT IN THE NECK"

Harry Walker, editor of the bright Limestone Democrat, published in Athens, is sarcastic over the failure of the state highway commission to finish the road between Athens and Huntsville.

In his current issue, he says editorially:

Limestone and Madison get it in the neck in the matter of road building, under a decision of the highway commission to drop plans for the building of roads in ten counties in Alabama. The claim is made that this is rendered necessary by the constitutional provision which says at least $250,000 of the bond money shall be spent in each of the 67 counties in Alabama.

It is not rather strange that this was not discovered until after the primary instead of before the primary when those old familiar signs "rote for McDowell and get a bridge here" were plastered over the state? When a certain citizen in Limestone suggested that the advertising for bids on the Athens-Huntsville road, inserted just prior to the primary, was all hokum he was shamed for thinking honorable state officials would be guilty of such practice.

Sumter county doesn't suffer by this decision of the state highway commission, as she long since "got her'n."

Incidentally, it might be mentioned en passant that Madison and Limestone didn't go for McDowell.

Mr. Walker, as editor of one of the best weekly newspapers in Alabama, has done and is doing much for the upbuilding of his home section and the Tennessee Valley generally, yet The Daily cannot agree with him that his attack on the state highway commission is entirely deserved.

The Daily is not so conversant with road conditions in Limestone county as Mr. Walker, yet The Daily takes it that it is an undisputed fact that the state build a rather good road from Athens toward Florence. It is an undisputed fact also that the state highway commission, with aid from Albany-Decatur, Morgan and Limestone counties (very small aid from the two counties, it will be recalled), is building a handsome bridge across the Tennessee river at this point.

The state highway commission also is constructing a fill from the river to the new lake bridge, and beyond that point to an intersection with the present Bee Line highway. All of this latter construction is in Limestone county. The bridge, of course, touches both Limestone and Morgan counties.

The Daily is disappointed that no way has been found just now to build the road between Huntsville and Athens. That is a very necessary highway and it is to be hoped that some way will be found to procure funds for its construction. Never-the-less, The Daily cannot help but feel that Mr. Walker, if he will emulate the injunction of the popular gospel hymn and "count his blessings," he will discover, on second consideration, that instead of "getting it in the neck" that Limestone county has fared pretty well under the administration of Chairman John A. Rogers and his associates.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

BY J. E. BLAIR

"A brother in time of trouble; but a friend for every condition." In other words friendship is above brotherhood! Emerson, the greatest of American philosophers takes that view. And Holy Writ reveals the same truth in the wonderful words: "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." Those who believe in "verbal inspiration" lay great stress on the differences between friendship and brotherhood. This class of thinkers will cite you to the use of the word "Friend" by the Master as expressing the acme of attainment as regards relationships. "I call you friends," says the Savior of the world! The greatest relationship referred to by the greatest of Persons!

It does look like people would be inspired by the prospect of becoming true friends.

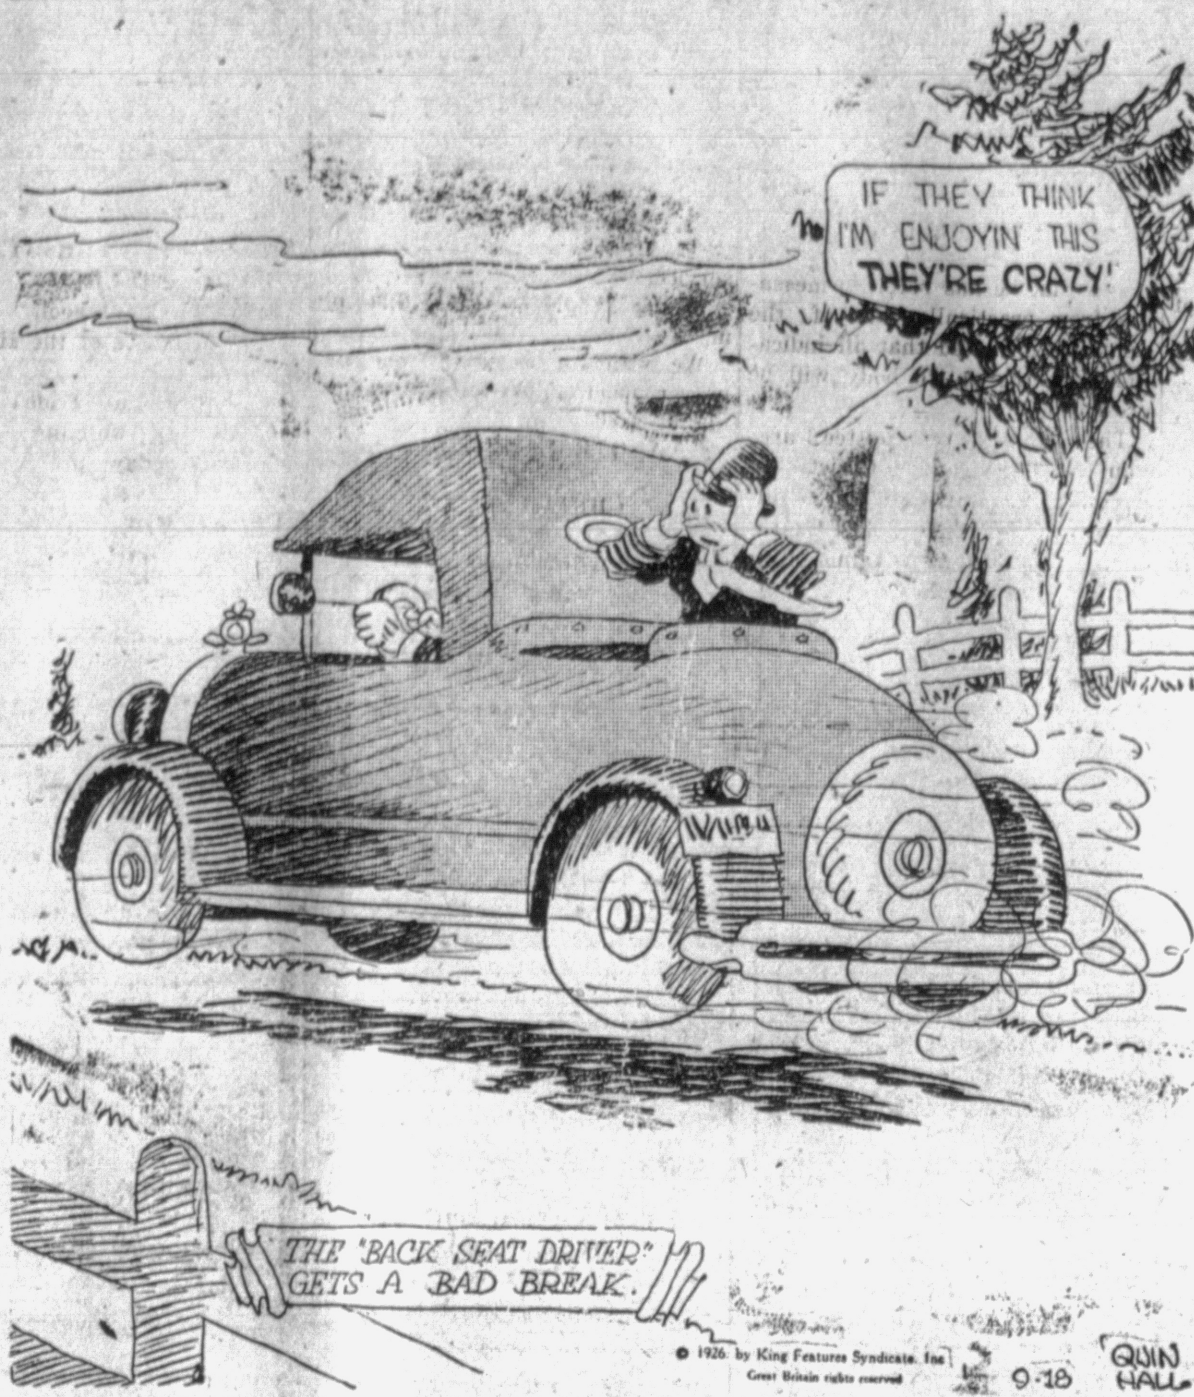

It should be said in passing, that out side of the relationship of friendship nobody is safe, and that all who are within the charmed circle of Christ-like friendship are saved forever more!

You say, why ring in the expression "Christ-like friendship"? Was it brought in just to be "preaching," just to connect with the name of the Savior? No. Every friendship, if enough pressure is brought to bear against it, outside of Christian friendship, will FAIL. Note how the close relationship between the late Woodrow Wilson and that eminent American, Edward M. House, was broken down. I will not say it was severed! But House attended the Wilson funeral an uninvited guest, I am told. And it is a fact that the great war president and Col. House saw little of each other for a long while before death claimed the man, who was House's "double!"

Somebody got between these men, whose friendship was "the most fruitful of good in the world's history."

Christ put His friendship above all others. He put it where it is forever safe from the influence of any human being. He demands that His followers forsake all human relationships for His friendship, if need be! There is one reason Christ's friendship is the only safe friendship. And another reason is, Christ's power alone enables members of our poor fallen race to keep inviolate the sacred friendship relationship! When the old Methodist and Baptist folks so long ago used to sing—"in every condition, in sickness and health, in poverty's vale or abounding in wealth"—they meant to say that friendship and Christ friendship, are the only friendships that meet all conditions at all times! Finally it is easier to be a brother in trouble than to be a friend to the successful man! How few like Whittier's school time sweetheart can say: "I did not want to go above you." Only those in Christ's love and friendship, "in honor prefer one another."

ELECTRIK MAI
BAKE SHOP
Second Ave., Albany

TO THE CITIZENS OF DECATUR, ALA.

I am a candidate for Mayor of this city. I have no political ambition further than the welfare of our city. I have made no political debts, and I promise not to interfere with your council, whom you may elect, in their choice of other city officers.

Therefore, if I am elected, I will be able to deal with the affairs of the city on their merits and with an eye single to the best interests of the people.

If elected I pledge myself to use my best efforts:
First—To give every section of the city and every class of its citizens, both white and colored, a "Square Deal, Fair and Impartial Treatment."
Second—To enforce all laws vigorously and firmly, consistent with justice, and to have no kinspeople of mine on the city pay-roll.

Third—To give every section of the city adequate police protection, to the end that life and property may be more secure.

Fourth—To administer the finances of the city, so that it will receive full value for every dollar expended.

Fifth—To stamp out as far as possible the influences that tend to demoralize our children and society in general.

Sixth—To further in every way possible the cause of Education.

Seventh—To anticipate the growth of the city in making public improvements, so that they will not prove to be inadequate in a few years.

Eighth—To subordinate all private interest to the public good, to spend a good portion of my time in the City Hall so that I may at all times better acquaint myself with the city affairs and shall endeavor to have a clean city, both physically and morally for our citizens.

Ninth—To use the influence of the Mayor's office in the encouragement of better business relations with the surrounding community and securing, if possible, new industries for Decatur.

If my ideas as outlined above meet with your approval, I will appreciate your vote and influence in my race for Mayor of Decatur, Alabama, in the election to be held September 20th.

To the Voters of Albany:

As the municipal campaign draws to a close, I feel that I would be ungrateful if I did not express in some manner to my many friends, my thanks for the interest they have manifested in my candidacy for President of the City Council.

It has been impossible for me to see every voter and ask you for your support, but I have tried to see as many as is humanly possible during two weeks. If I have not asked you to vote for me, please do not think that I do not want your vote, for I hope when you go to the polls Monday to cast your ballot that you can see your way clear to vote for me for President of your City Council.

Again thanking you for anything that you may have done in behalf of my candidacy, and assuring you of my ardent desire to serve you, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

CHILDREN'S ILLS

Arkansas Lady Says She Has Never Found a Better Laxative Than Theodor's Black-Draught.

Mineral Springs, Ark.—"We use Black-Draught in our family of six children," says Mrs. C. E. Nutt, of this place, "and we find it a good bowel regulator. I give it to my children for colds and constipation, or any other stomach disorders, and it certainly is very helpful. I have never known it to fail them. Where there are so many children, it is a good idea to keep a laxative on hand, and Black-Draught is what we use."

"I have taken it myself for indigestion. I would feel dizzy, have gas and sour stomach. I would also feel a tightness in my chest. I took a good dose of Theodor's Black-Draught when I felt that way and it would relieve me. I would feel better for days."

"My husband takes Black-Draught for biliousness. He says he has never found its equal. When he has the tired, heavy feeling, he takes Black-Draught night and morning for a few days and he doesn't complain any more. I sure do recommend Black-Draught."

Sold everywhere. Get a package of Black-Draught, today. Costs only one cent a dose. NC-175

Cards Hold First Place Solely As Reds Are Jolted Out By New York

The St. Louis Cards are undisputed in first place this morning after taking another easy tilt from the Phillies, in the opportune series, any series would have been opportune so long as the team was playing against the Phillies.

Frank Frisch was jolting the Reds out of a first place tie by knocking the ball over the fence in the tenth inning and Dazzy Vance was contributing his bit of discontent to the Pirates by keeping that squad settled in third place.

Rogers Hornsby's folks simply wrecked the Phils with a 10-1 count. Sherdel battled Philadelphia to eight hits.

The Reds were spun around in their race and handed a new lease on life in second place. Naturally that was not to the liking of the Reds, but they were beaten by Frankie Frisch with a home run punch over the wall in the eighth inning. Adolpho Luque was defeated after an excellent start.

The Pirates outthit the Robins 8-4, but lost the verdict 3-1. Carmen Hill went wild in the fifth inning for all the Robins runs.

The three leaders face the same opposition today, with the odds on the Cards to increase their lead.

The Indians are now within three and one half games of the New York Yankees. Surprising that the Yanks have fallen into such a heavy slump in hitting at this stage of the game. However, with the season so nearly at a close it is likely that the Indians are making an excellent fight without avail. The Yanks grabbed five hits off Shaute.

The Washington Senators gained a full notch on the Athletics in third place yesterday when the Senators took their fourth straight from Detroit while the Athletics were losing to Boston 6-3. The Senators are making a brave fight for third place and are still two and one half games behind. The change in position at the end of the season means a great many dollars in the pockets of the team players and is likely to bring considerable fight from the Athletics.

Little Rock club brought the season nearly to a close yesterday 7-4, thus making their footing even more substantial in last place. The Peds have lost 99 games. The Barons split a pair with the Crackers

ALUMNI TICKETS CAN BE BOUGHT

Alumni Has Order For $12,000 To See the Tide

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Sept. 18.—Beginning midnight Monday, any football fan who wants to obtain tickets for any of the games in which the Crimson Tide of Alabama will be one of the teams playing can obtain tickets by applying to Jess Long, assistant athletic director at Alabama.

The time allotted to alumni to obtain choice seats will expire Monday night, September 20, and unless an order is placed in the mails before that time, it will not be given preference. As was the case with sale of tickets to alumni, the first orders received will be filled first.

Tickets to all games, that is reserved tickets, will cost $2.50 each. An order for tickets must be accompanied by an additional twenty-five cents to cover postage and registration. All applications must be made to Jess Long, University, Ala.

In money figures, the alumni have ordered approximately $12,000 worth of tickets. It has been worthy of notice that alumni have shown preference to no particular game but seem intent on seeing all games to be played by the Tidesmen of Alabama. Several hundred tickets to both the Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech and Mississippi A. and M. games, all to be played out of Alabama, have been ordered.

Tickets to the general public will be obtainable from Long until October 9. After that date, they will be obtainable only in the town where a game is to be played the preceding two weeks before a game is to be played.

ROBBIE ROBINSON VISITS HIS SISTER

Famous Grid Star Is Visitor Here For a Few Days

Robbie Robinson, all-Southern tackle in 1923-24 on the University of Florida football team is the guest here of his sister, Mrs. Earl Calvin. Mr. Robinson plans to spend a day or two here, after which he will return to Florida, where he is engaged in the insurance business. He has been spending the summer months as director of a boy's camp in North Carolina.

Mr. Robinson was a member of the first championship football team in Florida and in recognition of his valuable services in team leadership, he was presented with an unusually handsome watch, suitably engraved, by the business men of Gainesville, Fla.

Speaking today of the famous Alabama-Florida game in 1923, which gave Florida the championship over 'Bama, Mr. Robinson laughed at the numerous stories told to the effect that Florida's strength in the second half was attributable partly to the fact that the team changed uniforms between the halves. He declared the only change made was the elimination of stockings which had been worn during the first half and the use of five dry jerseys, which were taken by members of the varsity from reserves who had not seen service in the early part of the game.

Plain Facts About Investments

CORPORATION SECURITIES

By W. S. COUSINS, International News Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK.—Professor Ripely of Harvard, the well known economist of Harvard University, has stimulated nation-wide discussion of the subject of publicity for American corporations particularly as a guide to the investor in corporation securities.

His raising of this question in a recent article has generally met with favorable response by the corporation heads, most of whom are willing to go the whole way of furnishing reliable information for prospective stockholders and others.

The great difficulty in stock speculation is that most investors are guided by the sheaves of false information put out in irresponsible quarters, and which they apparently accept without question while ignoring the reliable heads of the corporation. The Wall Street rumor factory is one of the most productive sources of unreliable information in the whole country and false reports have warped the judgment of hundreds of stock purchasers.

Recently the president of a company whose stock had been skyrocketed by a speculative pool authorized a public statement in which he said, in effect: "I know of no reason why the stock should be advancing so vigorously. There is no sensational gain in our business, and it will require an increase in business to maintain the present dividend rate on our stock."

Such statements are not infrequent these days, and any investor contemplating a purchase of corporation stock can secure authoritative information if they go about the matter in the proper manner.

Efforts to secure reliable advance information for their customers is a very commendable enterprise for the stock commission houses in Wall Street. It means profits for their clients and increasing income for themselves through the channels of commission on purchases and sales.

But the increasing tendency of certain Wall Street interests to invent or to fabricate a story to fit all occasions, and to substitute the same for the real facts in any situation cannot be too strongly condemned.

Industrial leaders are to be commended for their fearlessness and honesty in permitting the light of day to penetrate into the intimate affairs of their corporations for the enlightenment of the investing public. They could easily enrich themselves by "selling out" to the unsuspecting public a portion of their stock just prior to making their statements, but they would not hold their high positions if they were that type of men. It is unfortunate that as high a standard cannot be set and maintained among the leaders of stock speculation.

SYNOPSIS

In a fit of jealous rage Teddy Sherwood attacks Tony Fortescue, disinherited scion of a noble family because he latter has monopolized the attentions of Chrissie Bunning. The fight is at the close of a box party given by Lady George Cornish during a Convent Garden Ball. Sherwood is worsted, slipping and hitting his head in the street. A policeman appears on the scene but is assured that nothing out of the way has taken place by Chrissie, who has fallen in love with Tony at their first meeting—and he with her. Tony is not really a "black sheep" but a man born out of his age. He is a throwback to the days of his fighting roystering, smashbuckling ancestors. He and Chrissie insist on taking the unconscious Sherwood to his rooms.

VIII

Sherwood's rooms in Mount Street were above the offices of a well-known firm of house agents.

Before the cab was halfway up the street the still unconscious Sherwood was lying on the sofa.

Dawn had broken, and a cold light had brought out the outlines of the houses, but not even the earliest of the working ants of the sprawling city. The street was deserted as the cab stopped. The breeze which came in from the country had brought with it the faint aroma of the awakening earth, the intangible scent of unlooked-for flowers. As Chrissie caught it and drew in a long breath, she gave great thanks for the new life which Tony had presented to her.

With his unoccupied hand he had held one of hers during the journey from York Street. The other had been round the inanimate Sherwood, whose head had been resting on his shoulder with ironic affection.

"If it's all the same to you, I won't get out," said Lady George, who had never ceased to talk. "I'm a bit shaken after all this excitement. And Luceley's just about to come unglued. Chrissie had better come along 'ome with us, 'ave a nice 'ot bath, sleep till five o'clock in the afternoon and send some one for her clothes."

But in answer to Tony's enquiring look, the little golden head was shaken in violent protest.

"That's very charming of you," said Tony. "The only thing is, I think it will be necessary for Chrissie's tender fingers to make a bandage for poor old Teddy. I'm rather lost, when it comes to that. What do you think?"

"I'm past thinking," said Lady George, with an immense and irrepressible yawn. "All I ask is that you'll do what you're going to do without talkin' about it and let me go on to hit the sheets. I'm absolutely 'ootly all in."

"No wonder," said Tony sympathetically. "Give me time to hunt Teddy over for his latchkeys and to thank you a thousand times for bringing us here, and we'll keep you no longer. Ah, here they are, neatly on my ring. Major, I wonder, if I may trouble you?"

"No," said Chrissie, "let me have 'em," and in an instant she was out of the cab, standing in her startling whiteness at the side of the open door. The other key belonged to the flat on the first floor.

Before the cab was halfway up the street the still unconscious Sherwood was lying on the sofa in his sitting room, Chrissie was in the bathroom wetting a towel, and Tony was opening a sideboard in which he knew that brandy was to be found. He was one of those ubiquitous men who possessed the gift of making themselves completely at home in other people's houses, and in order to save trouble by not asking for what they want, make themselves instantly acquainted with geographical arrangements and help themselves.

"Curbstones are rotten things to hit," he said cheerfully, administering a dose. "Now the towel, Chrissie, I don't think it will be many minutes before our patient will be babbling again." He stood back and watched the girl's deft and delicate fingers with admiring eyes. He knew where he would be if it was come at last, and it was easy to guess where Chrissie would be found—cool, capable, and with an angelic smile that would be as valuable in the hospital ward as the surgeon's knife on gun fodder. Wasn't Ye gods!

And while she took off Sherwood's collar and undid his shirt, Tony went in search of the man who had such extraordinary gifts with a trying pan.

It was a well-arranged bachelor flat. There were a large and airy sitting room, a large enough dining room, plenty of cupboards. Sherwood's ideas as to furniture and decorations were, however, devoid of all originality. It was obvious that he had spent about half an hour in one of the Tottenham Court Road shops in which everything still smelt of varnish and had ordered one of this, three of that, two of the other until his list had been worked off. His carpets and curtains had come from the same establishment and probably his pictures as well. They were all honest, safe, and appalling. There was therefore, nothing charming about the place, which might easily have been a suite of rooms in a hotel at one of the tripper-run seaside resorts. It was, nevertheless, characteristically Sherwood, and off the peg, like his clothes. It seemed to shout the fact that it was penny plain, and if you don't like me don't play. It announced itself, rather blatantly, as the antithesis of so many of London's bachelor rooms which, with their old pieces, delicate curtains, many cushions and a thousand and one delightful dinks, looked as though they might belong to artistic women.

Tony had no fault to find. He had stayed there for weeks at a time, and when he had not won Teddy's bed with a flick of a coin had enjoyed many delicious sleeps on the sofa in the sitting room. He had taken so great a liking to the flat that it had been somewhat difficult to disgorge him on several occasions. He was an affectionate visitor.

The man, an Italian from the fact that his long black hair was fanned out dryly all over his pillow, and an ex-waiter by the existence of the white dicky which hung by its collar from one of the bed posts, was profoundly and noiselessly asleep. It would not have been surprising if he had confessed that he had come suddenly to life and escaped from one of Gozzoli's frescoes in the chapel of the De Medici palace and then had emerged from the beetle-ridden kitchen of a Soho restaurant to live in the comparative luxury of Mount Street.

Tony hated to disturb him, but he was anxious that Chrissie should have something to eat, and a cup of hot coffee to drive out the morning chill. She was recklessly without clothing. He, too, felt acutely the need of both, and after all as luck would have it, it was part of Bepo's business to be disturbed.

The deed performed, the order given, but the room not left until the half-dazed man was safely in his trousers, Tony returned in the highest spirits to the living room.

He was received with an angry glare from the sitting Sherwood and a question as to what the devil he was doing there.

"Oh, splendid work," said Tony warmly. "Congratulations, my dear old boy. You have the constitution of an ox."

"And you have the hide of a rhinoceros, you blighter," said Teddy. "And the cursed impertinence of a tax collector. Say it, why don't you? It will clear the air and leave us with nothing but the future is a question as to what the devil he was doing there."

"So far as the past goes, old man, I want you to know that I'm mighty fully sick at the way I went back on you tonight. No, listen, because this has got to be cleared up before we go on to the next step. You know how deeply I value your friendship and how grateful I am to you for all you've done for me. Please. ("My word," thought Chrissie, "he talks like a book," and she put her hand on Teddy's throbbing head to soothe him out of interruption. And Teddy would willingly have been half dead for less than that.) "You see, I've been dying to meet Chrissie ever since the night that you and I cheered the roof off at the Coliseum. And when you introduced us tonight at the C. G. B. I went nutty, old boy, balmy, dippy, prismatic, and all those hours went like a minute. I swear, they did, and it was only when Chrissie came in that I remembered what I'd done. No, don't blame out and work yourself up all over again. You'll only make your poor old coconut thump and undo all our work. I can't do more than offer you my humble apologies and ask you to accept my assurance that I'm damned ashamed."

His curious mixture of slang and pedanticism only added, somehow, to his earnestness and sincerity. "Gasp! Gasp!" cried Teddy. "You don't mean a word of it. You're the King of Kidders, I know you."

"Oh, Teddy," said Chrissie, to whom such remarks seemed almost blasphemous. "If this wasn't a bloomin' 'gent, she'd like to know who was!"

And then the man whose pride had been far more injured than his body turned on the girl whom he loved altogether beyond the power of words.

EIGHTY CASES ARE ON COURT DOCKET

Horton To Preside As Athens Begins Circuit Trials

(By D. L. ROSENAU, Jr.)
Circuit Court will open its fall session here Monday, Judge James E. Horton of Athens presiding. Approximately eighty cases, civil and criminal, are on the docket, of considerable variety but of no stirring importance. At the same time the grand jury will be organized and will go into session to bring out about forty indictments, according to local belief. Court will last for only two weeks, and considerable difficulty is expected in clearing the docket in this period of time.

COLLEGE CROWD OFF

This week has witnessed the departure of most of the Athens quota for colleges and professional schools, a rather incomplete list following: Van Gilbert, Washington and Lee; Hop-Chambers, Jini Chambers, and Thomas Allen, Auburn; Perry Henderson, Clarence Clem, and Euclid Gray, University of Alabama; Hawkins Westmoreland and John Sims Crutcher, Jr., Vanderbilt; D. J. Wilson and John Pippin Hill, Southern Dental College, Atlanta; Thomas Pettus and George Johnson, Cumberland; Bob Sanders, Randolph Macon; Le Ruth Glaze, Gulf Park; Helen Hendricks, Agnes Scott; Juliet Duncan, Sophie Newcomb; Lois McCracken, Madame Barrett's Indianapolis, Ind.; Rebecca Grisham, Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

WORK ON NEW TELEPHONE EXCHANGE

Representatives of the Western Electric company have arrived in Athens to begin work on the installation of the new telephone exchange and a great deal of material is also here. The new exchange will be located on the second floor of the Limestone Democrat building; three months approximately will be consumed in making the installation.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION COURSE PLANNED

Prof. J. M. Cannon, head of the Athens Public School System, is this week receiving applications for a university extension course for teachers to open September 25 and have nine meetings, for which four units of university credit will be given. Prof. James S. Thomas of the University of Alabama faculty will give the course, which will be made possible if as many as twenty enroll before the beginning date.

Oldest Motorman Hurt In Crash

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Steve Claudis, oldest trolley motorman in point of service in Montgomery, and said to hold priority from continuous street car service over that of any motorman in the United States, was injured in a collision between a truck and his car here Monday.

Mr. Claudis, who is about 60 years of age, was first employed in March 1886. Since that time he has been connected with the successive companies as an operator.

Extra Session Believed Dead

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 18. (AP)—The calling of an extra session of the state legislature by Governor W. W. Brandon appears to have died a natural death so to speak, according to those close to the Governor. It is said that the newly elected chief executive, Col. Graves has made the statement that he did not favor an extra session of the law making bodies of the state at this time.

WHITE AREAS IN SKIN MAY BE STAINED

Cause of Leucoderma Is Unknown and It Cannot Be Cured, but Experts Do Not Regard It as Dangerous to Health.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONCE in a while you meet a person who has a striking appearance because of a white lock running through a shock of otherwise perfectly black hair. Or there may be several snow-white spots in a head of otherwise dark hair. You may have observed a person with spots of milky whiteness on the hands or arms. These spots are like great freckles, but instead of being brown against the white skin, they are white against the normal skin covering the rest of the hands.

Such spots, of varying shapes and sizes, may be found on any part of the body. The hands, face, neck and arms are most commonly affected, but they may come anywhere.

Not only is the skin affected, showing a white or ivory surface, but even the minute hairs on these spots are without coloring matter. The hairs are not gray, but are absolutely white.

All these manifestations, whether in the skin or in the hair of the head, are described by the word "Leucoderma." The term means "white skin." Another name given the condition is "Vitiligo."

This ailment is not common in white people. It is more frequently found in the dark races. Severe nervous shock is thought to bear a relationship to its development. In most cases it seems impossible to trace the cause.

The condition is interesting by reason of its novelty and its freakish appearance. There has been described one instance where a colored man turned perfectly white through the widespread effects of Vitiligo.

This ailment has no relation to the general health. Striking as it seems, it has no importance except from the cosmetic standpoint. It is annoying, especially to women, in whom it is more common than in men.

In the present stage of our knowledge of medicine there is nothing to be done for Vitiligo. If the spots are very conspicuous, as they are likely to be in the Summer time when the rest of the skin is deeply tanned, they may be stained to lessen their prominence. For this purpose weak walnut juice may be used. You will recall how you used to stain your hands in "blackening" black walnuts. Carefully applied, this juice will temporarily hide the blemish of Vitiligo. Another stain which may be used in a solution of permanganate of potash. Either of these applications is harmless.

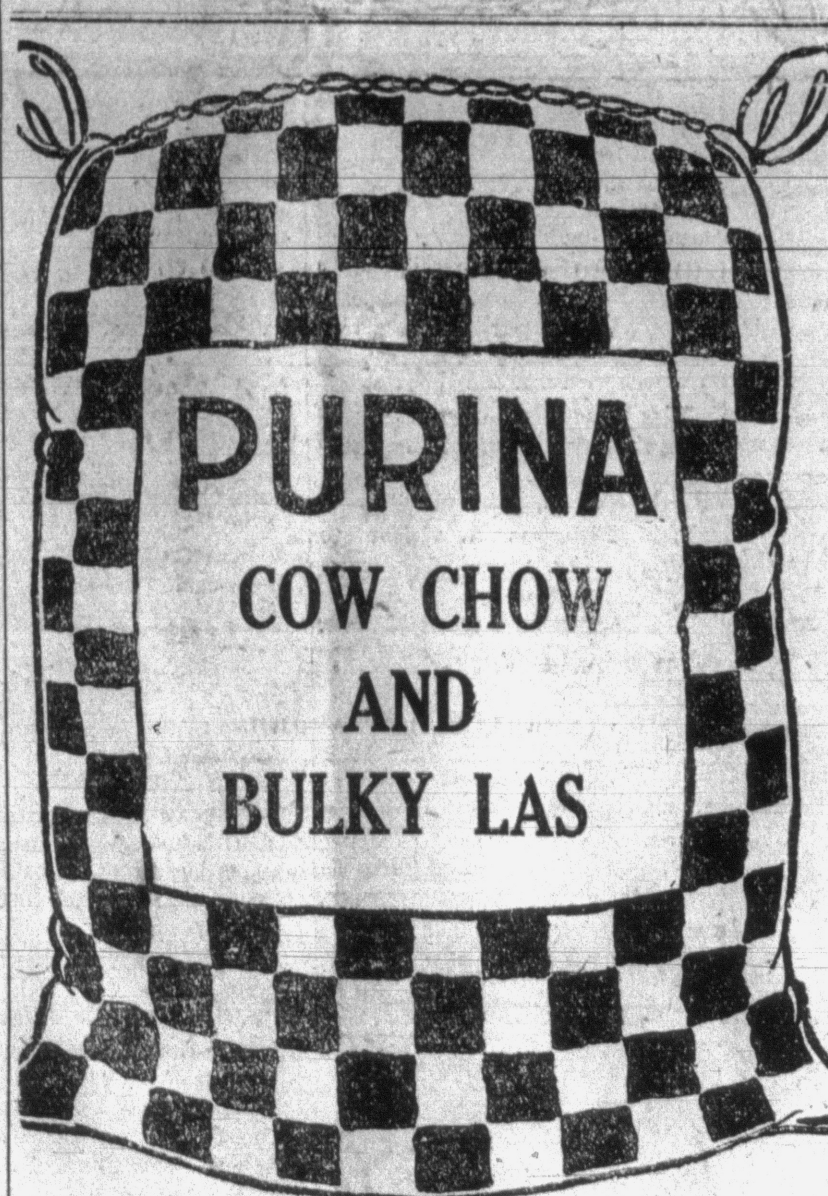

When we know more about the nervous system and about the "ductless glands," we will know more about a lot of diseases which are more or less mysterious at present.

There is no need to be disturbed about Vitiligo. It may look bad, but it will have no effect upon your general health unless you are foolish enough to worry over it. "Worry killed a cat," and it can kill a human! Let's be sensible and not worry!

Answers to Health Queries
Jenny. Q.—Every morning upon arising my pillow is literally covered with hair, my hair coming out by the handfuls. What would you advise?
A.—The condition of the health in general has a decided bearing on the condition of the scalp and hair. Keep the scalp immaculately clean

CITIZENS WILL KNOW
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Citizens of Alabama will soon know how their highway funds have been used by the state highway department. J. A. Hankins, state examiner of public accounts, has begun a detailed inspection of the many thousands of items that have entered into road construction and maintenance and his report will be completed within a few weeks.

Montgomery Still Boasts a Title

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Montgomery still boasts of her title "Mother of the Confederacy, or, The Cradle of the Confederacy." Many of the descendants of the old families whose members took part in the inauguration of President Jefferson Davis and the forming of the first cabinet meeting of the Confederate States government. Within the shadow of the Capitol stands the first "White House of the Confederacy." A tablet marks the spot upon which stood the old Exchange Hotel where the first cabinet meeting was held. From across the street of this site the message was sent to Charleston, S. C. ordering Gen. P. G. T. Beauregard to fire the first shot in the War Between the States.

TO THE VOTERS OF ALBANY, ALA.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—
During the past ten years I have had the pleasure and honor of serving you as alderman from the Third Ward three terms. I am again a candidate for this office and earnestly solicit your vote and influence.

I am well aware of the fact that this is a hard position to fill and one that costs anyone filling, much time and money and many friends, and my only motive in offering for the place is that I may be of some service.

Thanking you for any consideration you may give me, I am,
Yours respectfully,
C. L. BUCK.
